The MARTHA LEWIS is a v-bottom, two sail bateau (Skipjack), built in 1955 by Bronza Parks in Wingate, MD. Currently a floating museum, she is one of the few remaining working dredge boats that make up the Chesapeake Bay oyster fleet - the last to fish commercially under sail in the United States.
With clean, sleek lines and raked mast, the historic skipjack is a beautiful reminder of Chesapeake Bay heritage. Only a few of the original skipjacks are left on the Bay, which was once home to a fleet of the oyster-dredging sailboats a few generations ago.

Today the MARTHA LEWIS not only continues to dredge for oysters, but she also provides an unusual educational experience for area school children in addition to offering various programs and cruises for adults, children, and families.

The Skipjack MARTHA LEWIS is located where the Susquehanna River meets the Chesapeake Bay, in beautiful Havre de Grace, Maryland.
